

Ondřej Topolčan, MD, PhD

Education: 1967 Graduation from the Medical Faculty, Charles University in Pilsen
1972 Internal Medicine 1st degree specialization
1976 Internal Medicine 2nd degree specialization
2002 Endocrinology specialization

Titles: 1972 - 1986 Assistant professor
1986 - 1993 Associate professor (lecture)
1993 - till now Professor

Employment: 1967 - till now Department of Medicine, Medical Faculty, Charles University in Pilsen
1967 - 1972 House physician, resident medical officer
1993 - till now Head of immunoanalytical laboratory Medical Faculty Pilsen
1994 - till now Member of Scientific committee Medical Faculty in Pilsen
1996 - 2000 Head of 2nd Department of Internal Medicine, Pilsen
2000 - till now Dep. of Nuclear Medicine faculty hospital Pilsen – head of immunoanalytical laboratory

Other professional activities:

1999 - till now Member of Scientific committee Ministry of Health ČR
2000 - till now Head of central isotopic and rashers laboratory Medical Faculty Pilsen
2001 - till now Deputy director of Faculty hospital Pilsen for research and science
1993 - till now Professor of internal medicine

Main professional interests: Endocrinology

Membership:

Member of EGTM – European Society for tumor Markers
Member of European Society for Nuclear Medicine
Member of International Society of tumor markers and Molecular Biology – ISOBM
Member of European Society for Clinical Biochemistry
Member of American Society for Clinical Biochemistry
Member of Clinical Ligand Assay
Member of American Society for Osteoporosis

References: More than 200 publications in medical journals
More than 300 lectures in medical conferences and congresses
Scientifically citation index: 336