Membership in the EPMA-YPS provides a good opportunity for international cooperation between students all around the world. In order to improve Individual healthcare, the current state of science and medicine need to be discussed and views exchanged for the effective implementation of our ideas. Moreover, EPMA-YPS is an organization that supports young scientists and helps our self-realization. I decided to become a member of EPMA-YPS, because I want to be at the forefront of medical science. I also want to promote PPPM goals among students in my country to help their distribution around the world. I believe that in this way, we can save peoples' lives and improve general health, and thus quality of life. Even if you are young, you can do great things, and EPMA-YPS is a good way to start this process.
